Cobb, 80 Miss. 715, 32 So. 6; State v. Bielman, 86 Wash. 460, 150 P. 1194; Poff v. Pennsylvania R. Co., D.C.N.Y., 57 F.Supp. 625, 626. As to “next of kin,” see Next.

The primary and ordinary meaning of the word “kin” is related by ties of consanguinity, but the word “kin” is sometimes used in a general sense to include relationship by blood or by marriage. State v. Hooper, 140 Kan. 481, 37 P.2d 22.

KIND. Class, grade, or sort. City of St. Louis v. James Braudis Coal Co., Mo.App., 137 S.W.2d 668, 670. Genus; generic class; description. See In Kind.

KING

KING. The sovereign, ruler, or chief executive magistrate of a state or nation whose constitution is of the kind called “monarchical” is thus named if a man; if it be a woman, she is called “queen.”

The word expresses the idea of one who rules singly over a whole people or has the highest executive power; but the office may be either hereditary or elective, and the sovereignty of the king may or may not be absolute, according to the constitution of the country.
See Emperor.

KING CAN DO NO WRONG. This maxim means that the king is not responsible legally for aught he may please to do, or for any omission. Aust. Jur. sect. VI.

It does not mean that everything done by the government is just and lawful, but that whatever is exceptionable in the conduct of public affairs is not to be imputed to the king, 2 Steph. Com., 11th ed. 486.

KING-CRAFT. The art of governing.

KINGDOM. A country where an officer called a “king” exercises the powers of government, whether the same be absolute or limited. Wolff, Inst. Nat. § 994. In some kingdoms, the executive officer may be a woman, who is called a “queen.”

KING-GELD. A royal aid; an escuee (q. v.).

KING’S ADVOCATE. An English advocate who holds, in the courts in which the rules of the canon and civil law prevail, a similar position to that which the attorney general holds in the ordinary courts, i.e., he acts as counsel for the crown in ecclesiastical, admiralty, and probate cases, and advises the crown on questions of international law. In order of precedence it seems that he ranks after the attorney general. 3 Steph. Com. 275n.

KINGS-AT-ARMS. The principal herald of England was of old designated “king of the heralds,” a title which the “king’s bench” have exchanged for the “king’s-arms” about the reign of Henry IV.

The kings-at-arms at present existing in England are three—Garter, Clarencieux, and Norroy, besides Bath, who is not a member of the college. Scotland is placed under an officer called “Loch King-at-Arms,” and Ireland is the province of one named “Ulster.” Wharton.

KING’S BENCH. The supreme court of common law in England, being so called because the king used formerly to sit there in person, the style of the court being “coram ipso rege.”

It was called the “queen’s bench” in the reign of a queen, and during the protectorate of Cromwell it was styled the “upper bench.” It consisted of a chief justice and three puisne justices, who were by their office the sovereign conservators of the peace and supreme coroners of the land. It was a remnant of the aula regis, and was not originally fixed to any certain place, but might follow the king’s person, though for some centuries past it usually sat at Westminster. It had a very extended jurisdiction both in criminal and civil causes: the former in what was called the “crown side” or “crown office,” the latter in the “pleas side,” of the court. Its civil jurisdiction was gradually enlarged until it embraced all species of personal actions. Since the judicature acts, this court constitutes the “king’s bench division” of the “high court of justice.” See 3 Bl. Comm. 41–43.

KING’S CHAMBERS. Those portions of the seas, adjacent to the coasts of Great Britain, which are inclosed within headlands so as to be cut off from the open sea by imaginary straight lines drawn from one promontory to another.

KING’S CORONER AND ATTORNEY. An officer of the court of king’s bench, usually called “the master of the crown office,” whose duty it is to file informations at the suit of a private subject by direction of the court. 4 Bl. Comm. 308, 309; 4 Steph. Comm. 374, 378.

KING’S COUNSEL. Barristers or serjeants who have been called within the bar and selected to be the king’s counsel. They answer in some measure to the advocati faci, or advocates of the revenue, among the Romans. They must not be employed against the crown without special leave, which is, however, always granted, at a cost of about nine pounds. 3 Bl. Comm. 27.

KING’S EVIDENCE. When several persons are charged with a crime, and one of them gives evidence against his accomplices, on the promise of being granted a pardon, he is said to be admitted king’s or (in America) state’s evidence. 4 Steph. Comm. 395; Sweet.

KING’S PROCTOR. A proctor or solicitor representing the crown in the former practice of the courts of probate and divorce.

In petitions for dissolution of marriage, or for declarations of nullity of marriage, the king’s proctor may, under the direction of the attorney general, and by leave of the court, intervene in the suit for the purpose of proving collusion between the parties. Molesley & Whitley.

KING’S REMEMBRANCER. An officer of the central office of the English supreme court.

Formerly he was an officer of the exchequer, and had important duties to perform in protecting the rights of the crown; e.g., by instituting proceedings for the recovery of land by writ of intrusion, (q. v.) and for the recovery of legacy and succession duties; but of late years administrative changes have lessened the duties of the office. Sweet.

He was at the head of the department which had charge of all revenue suits, and of matters pertaining to the office of sheriff. He attended as the officer of the king’s bench when the lord mayor made his appearance on November 9th, and as representing the old court of exchequer when the city of London did suit and service in discharge of quit-rents for certain lands anciently held under the crown. He presided at the Trial of the Fyx, the asaying and weighting of the coins of the realm. See Remembrances of Sir F. Pollock.

KING’S SILVER. In old English practice. A fine due the king pro licentia concordandi, (for leave to agree,) in the process of levying a fine. 5 Coke, 39, 43; 2 Inst. 511; 2 Bl. Comm. 350.

KING’S WIDOW. In feudal law. A widow of the king’s tenant in chief, who was obliged to take oath in chancery that she would not marry without the king’s leave.

KINSFOLK. Relations; those who are of the same family.

KINSHIP. In Saxon law. A composition or satisfaction paid for killing a kinsman. Spelman.

KIRK-SESSION. A parochial church court in Scotland, consisting of the ministers and elders of each parish.

KISSING THE BOOK. The ceremony of touching the lips to a copy of the Bible, used in administering oaths. It is the external symbol of the witness' acknowledgment of the obligation of the oath.

KIST. In Hindu law. A stated payment; installment of rent.

It is said to be often shown in cases of women, laboring under their peculiar diseases or of those far advanced in pregnancy. A sharp distinction is made between kleptomaniacs and the tendency to steal so commonly observed in the well defined forms of insanity; the former is a defective mental characteristic approaching the confines of insanity on one subject alone, while the individual, on all other subjects, is perfectly sane. It differs from shoplifting in that the shoplifter steals for a purpose, and only those articles which are of value, while the kleptomaniac takes goods of any description, often of no use to herself and with no motive for their possession; 4 Am.Lawy. 533.

KNACKER. One who slaughters useless or diseased animals or deals in such. Cent. Dict. A regular occupation in London and other large cities, regulated by act of parliament August 18, 1811.

KNAVE. A rascal; a false, tricky, or deceitful person. The word originally meant a boy, attendant, or servant, but long-continued usage has given it its present signification.

KNAVESHIP. A portion of grain given to a mill-servant from tenants who were bound to grind their grain at such mill.

KNEEL. To bend the knees in worship without resting on them is to kneel. 36 L.J.Ecc. 10.

KNIGHT. In English law. The next personal dignity after the nobility.

Of knights there are several orders and degrees. The first in rank are knights of the Garter, instituted by Richard I. and improved by Edward III. in 1344; next follows a knight banneret; then come knights of the Bath, instituted by Henry IV.; and revived by George I.; and they were so called from a ceremony of bathing the night before their creation. The last order are knights bachelors, who, though the lowest, are yet the most ancient order of knighthood; for we find that King Alfred conferred this order upon his son Athelstan. 1 Bl.Comm. 403.

KNIGHTENGUILD. An ancient guild or society formed by King Edgar.

KNIGHTHOOD. The rank, order, character, or dignity of a knight.

KNIGHT-MARSHAL. In English law. An officer in the royal household who has jurisdiction and cognizance of offenses committed within the household and verge, and of all contracts made therein, a member of the household being one of the parties. Wharton.

KNIGHTS BACHELORS. In English law. The most ancient, though lowest, order of knighthood. 1 Bl. Comm. 404.

KNIGHTS BANNERET. In English law. Those created by the sovereign in person on the field of battle. They rank, generally, after knights of the Garter. 1 Bl. Comm. 403.

KNIGHT'S FEE. The determinate quantity of land, (held by an estate of inheritance,) or of annual income therefrom, which was sufficient to maintain a knight.

In the time of Henry II. the estate was estimated at £20 a year; but Lord Coke in his time it to be an estate of 680 acres. See 1 Bl.Comm. 404, 410; 2 Bl.Comm. 62; Co.Litt. 68a; 1 Poll. & Maitl. 232.

KNIGHTS OF ST. MICHAEL AND ST. GEORGE. An English order of knighthood, instituted in 1818.

KNIGHTS OF ST. PATRICK. Instituted in Ireland by George III., A. D. 1763. They have no rank in England.

KNIGHTS OF THE BATH. An order supposed to have been instituted by Henry IV., and revived by George I. in 1725 to consist of the sovereign, a grand master and 36 knights companions. In 1815 the order was instituted in three classes. In 1847 the civil knights, commandors and companions were added. They are so called from the ceremony formerly observed of bathing the night before their creation.

KNIGHTS OF THE CHAMBER. Those created in the sovereign's chamber in time of peace, not in the field. 2 Inst. 666.

KNIGHTS OF THE GARTER. See Garter.
KNIGHTS

KNIGHTS OF THE POST. A term for hireling witnesses.

KNIGHTS OF THE SHIRE. In English law. Members of parliament representing counties or shires, in contradistinction to citizens or burgesses, who represent boroughs or corporations.

A knight of the shire is so called, because, as the terms of the writ for election still require, it was formerly necessary that he should be a knight. This restriction was coeval with the tenure of knight-service, when every man who received a knight's fee immediately of the crown was constrained to be a knight; but at present any person may be chosen to fill the office who is not an alien. The money qualification is abolished by 21 Vict. c. 26. Wharton.

KNIGHTS OF THE THISTLE. A Scottish order of knighthood.

This order has been said to have been instituted by Achaius, king of Scotland, A.D. 819. The better opinion, however, is that it was instituted by James V. in 1539, was revived by James VII. (James II. of England) in 1687, and reestablished by Queen Anne in 1703. They have no rank in England. Wharton.

KNIGHTS' SERVICE. Upon the Norman conquest, all the lands in England were divided into knight's fees, in number above sixty thousand.

For every knight's fee, a knight was bound to attend the king in his wars forty days in a year, in which space of time a campaign was generally finished. If a man only held half a knight's fee, he was only bound to attend twenty days; and so in proportion. But this personal service, in process of time, grew into pecuniary communations, or aids; until at last, with the military part of the feudal system, it was abolished at the restoration, by the statute of 12 Car. II. c. 24. 1 Bla.Com. 410; 2 Id. 62; Will. Real Pr. 144; 1 Poll. & Maitl. 230.

KNOCK DOWN. To assign to a bidder at an auction by a knock or blow of the hammer.

Property is said to be "knocked down" when the auctioneer, by the fall of his hammer, or by any other audible or visible announcement, signifies to the bidder that he is entitled to the property on paying the amount of his bid, according to the terms of the sale. "Knocked down" and "struck off" are synonymous terms. Sherwood v. Reades, 7 Hill, N.Y., 439.

KNOT. In seamen's language, a "knot" is a division of the log-line serving to measure the rate of the vessel's motion.

The number of knots which run off from the reel in a minute shows the number of miles the vessel sails in an hour. Hence when a ship goes 8 nautical miles an hour she is said to go " 8 knots." Webster.

KNOW. To have knowledge; to possess information, instruction, or wisdom. State v. Ransberger, 106 Mo. 135, 17 S.W. 290. Horne v. Lewis, 160 Ga. 824, 129 S.E. 95; To perceive or apprehend, to understand. International-Great Northern R. Co. v. Pence, Tex. 280 U.S. 113, 53 S.W. 2d 206, 210.

The word "familiar" is equivalent. Smiley v. Lenane, 383 Ill. 66, 1 N.E.2d 213, 216.

KNOW ALL MEN. In conveyancing. A form of public address, of great antiquity, and with which many written instruments, such as bonds, letters of attorney, etc., still commence.

The use of the word in an indictment is equivalent to an assertion that the defendant knew the facts about to be charged. U. S. v. Claypool, D.C.Mo., 14 F. 128; State v. Wilson, 41 Idaho 638, 242 P. 787, 795.

"Knowledge" consists in the perception of the truth of affirmations, or of negative propositions, which "admits of all degrees, from the slightest suspicion to the fullest assurance. State v. Godette, 188 N.C. 497, 125 S.E. 24, 28; Frankin v. State, 180 Wisc. 424, 194 N.W. 133. The difference between them is ordinarily merely in the degree, to be judged of by the court, when addressed to the jury; Hatch v. Carpenter, 9 Gray, Ma., 271. See Utley v. Hill, 155 Mo.
Knowledge may be imputed, when the means of knowledge exists, known and accessible to the party, and capable of communicating positive information. Smith v. Industrial Acc. Commission of California, 174 Cal. 189, 162 P. 636, 637; Scheekels v. Ice Plant Mining Co., Mo.App., 189 S.W. 12, 15; Hopkins v. McCarthy, 121 Me. 27, 115 A. 513, 515. However closely actual notice may, in many instances, approximate knowledge, and constructive notice may be its equivalent in effect, there may be actual notice without knowledge; and, when constructive notice is made to determine priorities of right, it may fall far short of knowledge. Cleveland Woolen Mills v. Sibert, 81 Ala. 149, 1 So. 773; Dodge v. Grain Shippers’ Mut. Fire Ins. Ass’n, 176 Iowa 316, 157 N.W. 955, 961; Stanton v. Hawkins, 41 Ill. 501, 103 A. 229, 230. Thus, oral notice to employer by employee of injury is not “knowledge” of the injury, excusing employee’s failure to give notice of injury required by Workmen’s Compensation Act. In re Brown, 228 Mass. 31, 116 N.E. 897, 898; In re Simmons, 117 Me. 175, 103 A. 68.

“Knowledge” of contents of an instrument must include understanding of its actual contents. Mitchell v. Sille, 137 Md. 89, 111 A. 814, 819.

Law regards as “knowledge” reckless misrepresentation, with intent to deceive, about that which party pretended to know but knew nothing. Holt v. Gieo, 44 Ga.App. 685, 162 S.E. 663, 664.

Carnal knowledge. See Carnal Knowledge.

Knowledge of another’s peril. One has “knowledge of peril of another,” within doctrine of discovered peril, whenever it reasonably appears from the known facts and circumstances that the latter is pursuing a course which will probably terminate in serious bodily injury to him, and that he probably will pursue it to the end. Galvin v. A. H. Ry., Co. v. Wagner, Tex.Com.App., 298 S.W. 552, 554.

Knowledge of law includes knowledge of the decisions of the courts, which are part of the law. Spitzer v. Board of Trustees for Regina Public School Dist. No. 4, of Saskatchewan, C.C.A.Ohio, 267 F. 121, 126.

Personal knowledge. Knowledge of the truth in regard to a particular fact or allegation, which is original, and does not depend on information or hearsay. Personal knowledge of an allegation in an answer is personal knowledge of its truth or falsity; and if the allegation is a negative one, this necessarily includes a knowledge of the truth or falsity of the allegation denied. West v. Home Ins. Co., C.C.Ore., 18 F. 622.

KNOWN. Familiar; perceived; recognized; understood; especially, when used absolutely, familiar to all; generally understood or perceived, and term may, according to context, refer to both actual and constructive knowledge. Wolf v. Mallincrodt Chemical Works, 336 Mo. 746, 81 S.W.2d 323, 333; McCullough v. National Bank of Union City, 127 Pa.Super. 452, 193 A. 65, 66.

KNOWN HEIRS. In a statute relating to the sale of property of unknown heirs, it has been held to mean those persons who are known, and whose right to inherit, or the extent of whose right, to inherit, is dependent on the non-existence of other persons nearer or as near as the ancestor in the line of descent. People v. Ryder, 65 Hun 175, 19 N.Y.S. 977.

KNOWN—MEN. A title formerly given to the Lollards. Cowell.

KORAN. The Mohammedan book of faith. It contains both ecclesiastical and secular laws.

KULEANA. The Hawaiian term “kuleana” means a small area of land, such as were awarded in fee by the Hawaiian monarch, about the year 1850, to all Hawaiians who made application therefor. De Fries v. Scott, C.C.A.Hawaii, 268 F. 952, 953.

KUT-RUBALA. In Hindu law. A mortgage-deed or deed of conditional sale, being one of the customary deeds or instruments of security in India as declared by regulation of 1806, which regulates the legal proceedings to be taken to enforce such a security. It is also called “Byebil-Wuffa.” Wharton.

KYMORTHA. A Welsh term for a waster, rhym- er, minstrel, or other vagabond who makes assemblies and collections. Barring. Ob. St. 360.

KYTH. Sax. Kin or kindred.
